

The African-American Community Fund

2014 - 2015 Annual Report

We Are Family

from the Presidents of the African-American Community Fund and The Dayton Foundation

The African-American Community Fund (AACF) has just completed its 23rd year. Because of you, it was one of the most successful in the history of the Fund. The Advisory Board and I owe a great debt of gratitude to the Greater Dayton community for our success in obtaining and exceeding our goals for our last fiscal year!

As we move from 2014-2015 and our theme of "Education is the Key," to our 2015-2016 theme of "We are Family" we are proud of our ability to continue to provide the community with a vehicle to promote philanthropy. We will continue to work to meet and exceed our goals so we can continue to assist the Greater Dayton African-American community. As stated by the late AACF board President Elaine Hagood, "As members of the community embrace the vision of AACF, the family of caring individuals grows. Like all family members, each member has a role to play; each role is differentiated by gifts, skills and experiences; but each is essential and contributes to the growth of the family."

Calvin D. Heard
President, The African-American Community Fund

Since its establishment in 1992 under the umbrella of The Dayton Foundation, the African-American Community Fund (AACF) has created a permanent financial resource and legacy for our region's African-American community.

Thanks to the dedication and continued support of its Advisory Board, volunteers and donors, AACF holds great promise for the future of our community. The Dayton Foundation is very proud to support its leadership role in continuing the tradition of African-American giving and applaud its continued success for the benefit of generations to come.

What Is The African-American Community Fund?

The African-American Community Fund (AACF), a component fund of The Dayton Foundation, was established in 1992 with a mission to increase African-American involvement in organized philanthropy, thereby strengthening nonprofits serving the African-American community.

Established in 1992 under the leadership of The Dayton Foundation's Emeritus Governing Board member, John E. Moore, Sr. and former member, Lloyd E. Lewis, Jr., these trailblazers in the Dayton community recognized the importance of giving back in perpetuity. Thanks to their forward thinking and commitment to bringing this idea to fruition, AACF is now recognized as a national model for the promotion of philanthropy in the African-American community.

Although AACF began in 1992, the first endowment gift by an African-American to The Dayton Foundation was created by Moses Jones, Dayton's first black attorney in 1926. Since that time, African-Americans in the Dayton community have helped AACF to grow from this one fund to over 190 funds with an asset value over $5.4M as of June 30, 2015, and over $3.3M being issued in grants to various nonprofit organizations.

The African-American Community Fund represents the generous nature of African-Americans in various communities throughout the greater Dayton/Miami Valley region. What Lloyd E. Lewis, Jr. stated many years ago still rings true: "We are a people from all over the map, churches, nonprofit organizations and individuals. AACF is an idea whose time has come. I'm a believer that we African-Americans can do this ourselves."

African-American Community Fund: Impacting Philanthropy

There is power in doing things together...collectively...as a family, and the African-American Community Fund (AACF) has continued to prove this fact during its 23 year history. Since 1992 when AACF was established by John E. Moore, Sr., and the late Lloyd E. Lewis, Jr., the power of organized philanthropy in the Greater Miami Valley African-American community continues to show its strength in numbers with the Matching Program.

The Matching Program began in 1992 with a $50,000 gift from The Dayton Foundation to cultivate an interest in organized philanthropy within African-Americans of the Greater Miami Valley region. The program was re-introduced in 2012 and due to the overwhelming success, was implemented for four (4) successive years. As of June 30, 2015, a total of 68 new funds have been established with the matching program. As well, the Matching Program has enabled AACF to issue over $35,000 in discretionary grants to local nonprofits during this four-year period. The Matching Program will end December 31, 2015, so I encourage you to become a part of the AACF family today. Establish a fund to make a difference in your community and leave a legacy. By creating a designated fund, scholarship fund or Charitable Checking Account, donors can create an impact locally, nationally or internationally.

Charitable Options

Your charitable gifts through the African-American Community Fund are greatly appreciated and make a difference in the community in which we live. This is a brief introduction to some of the best tax-savvy methods of charitable giving. However, we do urge you to discuss your financial situation with your tax, legal or other professional advisor. Charitable options that may be of consideration include:

Gifts of Cash: Most gifts are in the form of cash, via a check written by the donor, or a donation online with a credit card. If you itemize your taxes, your outright gift is fully deductible for federal income tax purposes up to 50 percent of adjusted gross income.

Gifts of Stock & Securities: Giving long-term, appreciated stock offers you two-fold tax savings. First, you avoid paying long-term capital gains tax on the increase in the value of the stock on the date of the gift. For income tax purposes, the value of such gifts is deductible up to 30 percent of adjusted gross income.

Life Insurance: Life insurance can be one of the easiest ways to give by designating a percentage of the policy proceeds to the African-American Community fund as a beneficiary. If the policy has a cash value, you can take a charitable deduction approximately equal to the cash value at the time of the gift.

Bequests: Through a deferred gift such as a bequest, your long-term charitable intent can be outlined during your lifetime. The African-American Community Fund can be named as a beneficiary in your will through a simple amendment called a codicil.

Gifts of Grain: Farmers looking to minimize their tax liability can donate crops to their Charitable Checking AccountSM at the Foundation. This type of donation can make a significant impact on their community, as well as reduce their taxable income.

Consider making a gift to the African-American Community Fund. Visit www.aacfd Dayton.org or contact Whitney Briggs at 937.222.0410.

I don't think you ever stop giving. I really don't. I think it's an on-going process. And it's not just about being able to write a check. It's being able to touch somebody's life.

— Oprah Winfrey

We Are Family

Beverly, Larry and Jessica Jenkins

Building Upon a Family Legacy of Giving

Jessica Jenkins

Giving back is essential to the Jenkins family. For spouses, Larry and Beverly, and their daughter, Jessica, giving can take many forms through talent, time and/or treasure. And as a family, the Jenkins family opened the “Jenkins, Mack and Johnson Memorial Fund” under The African-American Community Fund at The Dayton Foundation to create and leave a family legacy of giving. AACF learned more about the Jenkins family and their motivation behind creating this fund.

Larry Jenkins, CEO of Nouveau Innovation Alliance, LLC, is active with his church, the Engineering Club of Dayton and Boonshoft JR. FLL LEGO program. Beverly, associate director of the University of Dayton Office of Student Success and Parent Engagement, gives back through her sorority (Alpha Kappa Alpha), Dayton View Triangle Neighborhood Association and Northwest Priority Board. Whereas Jessica, assistant director for Montgomery County Department of Human Services Planning & Development, supports her church, Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority and by serving on various community boards.

Building Upon a Family Legacy of Giving

What inspires you about the Greater Dayton community?

Larry Jenkins: Potential of the greater community is inspiring.

Jessica Jenkins: I am inspired by the Dayton community's willingness to work together towards a greater good. Working in the field of human services I have always been amazed by the way the community steps up to tackle difficult issues and often adopts a "no Daytonian left behind" attitude.

Who or what has influenced your desire to give both your time and dollars to charity?

Larry Jenkins: My deceased father-in-law's (Marc Johnson) understanding of the capitalistic system movement of capital for social return.

Beverly Jenkins: My parents instilled in me the importance of giving back and helping others.

Jessica Jenkins: My parents have definitely had a large influence on my desire and enthusiasm to give of my time and resources to charity. But, I would also acknowledge my grandmothers (Albertha Jenkins) and (Winnie Johnson) who both were living testaments of what it meant to be servant leaders; as women who both, despite limited means, were always the first to lend a helping hand or share their resources to improve someone else's situation.

What inspired you to make this a family experience?

Larry Jenkins: My father-in-law's teachings on building family legacy and loyalty through dedicated charity and service leadership.

Beverly Jenkins: Because I was raised with the tradition of giving instilled in me it has been important to continue that tradition and legacy in my own family.

Jessica Jenkins: Not to speak for my Dad... It was really important for him to honor the legacy of my grandfather and grandmothers who not only instilled the important value of giving back in their children but also did so in their lives by being active "givers" to their churches and local communities.

How does AACF and The Dayton Foundation help you help others?

Larry Jenkins: The two organizations help me to share with others the importance of collective capital with a purpose especially as it responds to the capital needs of the family in education. Working together in harmony to serve the next generation in the family should be a life goal for everyone no matter what is their personal economic condition at the time.

Jessica Jenkins: AACF and the Dayton Foundation help me help others by making giving easy (as simple as 3-4 mouse clicks). Using the Charitable Checking Account (CCA) makes making contributions to the organizations and causes I care about, simple with online access to my account and gift-making.

Why is helping others so important to you?

Larry Jenkins: Service leadership is a family trait for our family via the church, government, and educational institutes from grade school to universities. Therefore, I would say it is in our family nature and personally I believe sharing your God given blessing with others is a true way of life for peace and harmony.

Beverly Jenkins: Helping other is who I am. It is important to me to help others because I have been fortunate to receive so much from others.

Jessica Jenkins: Helping others is important to me because I have been so blessed to be in a position to give back and share with others.

How would you complete this sentence, "My giving makes me feel ___"?

Larry Jenkins: Joyous --- Knowing I've been blessed the opportunity to share especially with family.

Beverly Jenkins: Blessed to be able to help others.

Jessica Jenkins: Alive. Giving allows to me to feel a part of a community, committed to making the world a better place.

Make Your Charitable Giving Easier and Help the African-American Community Fund -

Open a Charitable Checking AccountSM Today

Did you know that you can make your charitable giving easier while supporting the African-American Community Fund (AACF)? The Dayton Foundation is offering an exciting incentive program to donors who open new Charitable Checking Accounts (CCA) through the AACF through December 2015. Grant amounts awarded from your new account to any 501(c)(3) will be matched dollar-for-dollar, up to $1,000, and awarded in your name to AACF's discretionary fund.

The CCA Service through The Dayton Foundation functions like a personal checking account, making record-keeping of your charitable donations easier for you. CCA benefits include:

- Donor direction. You can give to any IRS-approved U.S. charity. The Foundation will verify the organization's charitable status for you.

- Tax smart. Fund the account with appreciated assets, such as stocks, mutual funds or real estate, and avoid the long-term capital gains tax, thus making your charitable dollars go farther.

- Tax timing. Deposit assets in an account in the year when you need a tax deduction and make a grant anytime in the future.

- Online giving, 24/7. Obtain up-to-date account information, direct grants and access your gift history through the Foundation's secure, password-protected online service, Donor Express.

- Save on paperwork. We cut the checks or transfer the funds to charities for you and provide quarterly and end-of-the-year account statements, allowing for easier management of your charitable donations at tax time.

- No minimums and no fees - it's free!

Plus, the Service makes budgeting for your charitable giving easier as you can deposit assets into your account when it's convenient for you. This helps you support your favorite charities when their need is greatest, like during the holidays. For more information about this free service or to open an account, visit www.daytonfoundation.org/ccaserv.html or call Whitney Briggs, Development officer, at (937) 222-0410.
